

COX SIDESTEPS WHEN ASKED TO STATE HIS STAND IN DRY LAWS

Democratic Candidate Makes Evasive Answer to Question of Mitchell Man

ENROUTE WITH GOV. COX. OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 28.—After yesterday's tour of South Dakota, where he gave the first pronouncement of his attitude toward the Volstead prohibition enforcement act, Governor Cox, democratic candidate for president, today traveled to Missouri and Kansas, where the prohibition question has been one of the vital issues for many years.

Cox was asked by a member of his audience at Mitchell yesterday to state his attitude toward the Volstead act. His reply was:

"I shall oppose any measure that is in conflict with the constitution of the United States and the eighteenth amendment as interpreted by the supreme court."

Three addresses were on today's program. The first, at St. Joseph, Mo., was to be followed by one at Atchison, Kansas, and at Topeka, the state capital tonight.

In a statement today Governor Cox criticized his republican opponent for having no plan in substitution for the league of nations. He said:

"The reason Senator Harding has no definite plan in substitution for the league of nations is because he does not dare suggest to the mothers of America the only alternative there is; namely, a return to international 'normalcy' of 1914 with autocratic monarchs and sudden ultimatum, and secret diplomacy, and burdensome armaments."

"The reason Senator Harding has no substitute is because everything else has been tried and failed."

Three days remain of the democratic candidate's western tour, which will end at Kansas City Saturday night.

Normal Notes

The first meeting of the Physical Education club was held last night. Officers were elected and plans discussed for the year. It is the intention of the club to hold a mixer early in October. The following officers were elected: George Miller, president; Miss Haupt, vice-president and Miss White, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Berry has issued a call for the glee club and orchestra. The premises of something good in the musical line soon.

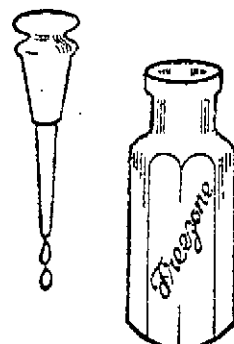

President Cotton is in Madison attending a meeting of the Board of Regents of the Normal Schools. Mr. Brooks, who is to teach chemistry and mathematics has arrived. He was delayed for a short time, but the work has been going on under other instructors.

AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN ANXIOUS OVER SITUATION IN ITALY

ROME, Sept. 28.—Several American firms having plants in Italy have become alarmed over the situation here, and it is declared they would prefer quitting business rather than have their property operated by workmen. A large amount of capital has been invested in these plants. Their alarm is largely due, it is said, to a misunderstanding of the Italian word "controllo" which, wrongly translated, has been taken to mean "control."

Its real significance is, however, that part in the technical, financial, and the men would be allowed to take disciplinary management of factories.

Buy Pabst Holsteins for Milk Production

(Sale takes place Oct. 9th, 1920—10:30 A. M. sharp—at the farm.)

With the present high price of feed and, if properly figured, with milk really selling below actual cost, why not do as the business man does—decrease the cost of production by increasing the output.

Champion Dora Korndyke with 29,395 lbs. of milk and 1,315.9 lbs. of butter in a year, a product of the Pabst Stock Farm, shows just how much more in dollars and cents pure bred cows mean than scrub stock.

There are many other animals on the Pabst Stock Farm not yet fully developed, that no doubt will develop as sensationally as Champion Dora Korndyke.

The highest priced Holstein bull, for its age, ever sold in the United States, was sold by the Pabst Stock Farm for $20,000. Pabst Korndyke Kornflower sold at $30,000. Her son, before she made her record, sold for $1,180. His present owner is asking $40,000!

Come to the first sale of surplus bulls to be held on the Pabst Stock Farm, October 9th at 10:30 A. M.

Even if you are not a Holstein breeder and though you do not want to buy, come and get acquainted with the greatest money making development in the agricultural world.

Sale will be Held Saturday, Oct. 9th—10:30 A. M. Sharp

NOT YET

"TEN thousand Reds captured" is again in the headlines. The latest company to be featured in this familiar and popular drama is that of General Baron Wrangel. Once more we read about the big advances made by the anti-bolsheviks, etc., etc. Perhaps it is true. It has been true before. Kolchak, Denikin and Yudenitch did capture bolsheviks by the brigade, did advance their fronts by hundreds of miles. Also, although we did not discover it in dispatches until later, they made two bolsheviks for every one they killed and captured, what with their own reactionary tendencies and their apparent dependence upon foreign subsidy. Bolshevism sprang up behind their advancing fronts as rapidly as they pushed them forward. And their great advances made as much impression on Russia proper as a punch on a pillow. Let us not be deluded this time. When bolshevism is destroyed, it will be destroyed from within, by the Russian people themselves. Look at the map. The biggest expeditionary army the world ever saw could drive forward until its communications were stretched to the breaking point and still be barely inside the borders of that great territory, comparatively speaking. Napoleon took Moscow, but he lost a mighty army and doomed his power. Russia remained unchanged. Amateur Napoleons, with hardly a morsel of Bonaparte's skill, prestige or resources, will scarcely do better. Save your enthusiastic welcome for the fall of bolshevism until the headlines begin to talk of peasant uprisings in the interior or until Moscow announces the summoning of a constituent assembly, which will mean the same thing. The power of the communists will fail suddenly with a peasant revolution, or it will metamorphose itself gradually into a genuine democracy because the communists see that a peasant revolution is inevitable unless they meet its demands. Either way it will be the Russian people who do it. Reactionary guerrilla warfare along the borders only delays its advent.

THERE ARE TWO SIDES

PRE-SUMABLY as part of its campaign service to the G. O. P., the Chicago Tribune takes President Wilson to task for having refused to abrogate commercial treaties as directed by the new Jones mercantile marine act. The act provides for the establishment of lower rates for freight carried in American ships and is hence in contravention to clauses in most of the nation's commercial treaties with other nations, which pledge mutual abstention from discriminatory duties and such one-sided devices for trade advantage. Whether President Wilson is right in his reported position that he is not bound to take the orders of congress in foreign affairs is a question raised by the Tribune which is well-calculated to arouse both prejudice and academic discussion. Regardless of the constitutional aspects of the question, it would indeed seem that expediency and moral if not legal authority would constrain an executive to respect the wishes of the law-making body of the government. In the present prevailing attitude toward the administration it is altogether likely that should the matter become an issue in the campaign the republicans would obtain the verdict of public opinion.

But apart from the legal and moral bearing of the president's attitude there are practical considerations as to the wisdom of immediately abrogating commercial treaties with the rest of the world which in the interest of proper judgment of the controversy ought to be considered. Chief among them is the prediction in quarters well-versed in matters of foreign trade and international relations that the application of the Jones bill to the American mercantile marine will involve the United States in a trade war of considerable bitterness. Advocates of the policy do not seriously deny that cancellation of the non-discrimination clauses of our treaties will evoke retaliatory action on the part of foreign governments. It may well be that the need of the world for American products will be more than sufficient to offset this counter, and that our foreign trade will continue to prosper and our shipping to flourish. But to engage the country in such a struggle, even with some assurance of ultimate success, involves a serious alteration of governmental policy extending over something like a century. It is not to be entered upon lightly, since it has ramifications extending into the vitals of national prosperity, perhaps even involving the matter of peace or war.

Perhaps the country is willing to take the risks in confidence of success. But it is understandable, at least, that an administration in its last months should hesitate to commit the nation to change in policy of such proportions. The last mandate on record from the people in regard to commercial foreign policy was a declaration against protective tariffs, and in effect an endorsement of the democratic principle of tariff for revenue only. The Jones bill discriminatory freight rate principle is in effect the application of a protective tariff on certain classes of foreign products, and although it passed congress there was but little public discussion of the principle involved, certainly nothing approaching the vigor and thoroughness of the controversy which has hitherto preceded decisions as to tariff policy.

The question of policy in the Jones bill is one that will doubtless prove a major item in the business of the Harding administration. If the senator is elected. It would hardly be courteous and might be productive of uncomfortable results were the expiring administration to attempt to present its successor with a ready-made policy with which it might be out of sympathy, particularly in a matter of foreign affairs.

Condemn the president if you will for refusing to carry out the Jones bill details in toto—but also consider whether you would approve of the precedent which such action would establish of permitting a moribund administration to commit the country to important programs without consulting the people.

"SPILLING THE BEANS"

THE high cost of being elected continues to be the great national campaign controversy. Somehow, Mr. Cox seems to fail in strategy. He found evidence of an ambitious money-raising plan in time to prevent the scheme from working, thereby rendering his disclosure of little value as campaign material. Republicans assert that they pit their allotments high knowing they would get less than they asked, and Cox has made sure they will get much less than they asked by making the party managers afraid to take too much and prospective contributors afraid to give too much. If Cox's plan was just this—to shorten the money supply that would be used against him—he has "cut the mustard", but if he sought rather to influence iniquity, he has "spilled the beans". For the latter purpose he should have kept still until his opponents had collected the swag, and then caught them "with the goods". At the outset of the campaign it was observed that in a democratic country "Jimmie" had something on "Warren Gamaliel", for "Little Lord Fauntleroy" never was popular in our alley. But when "Jimmie" proves a false alarm it may be observed that swag gets no further than pose with the gang on the corner. With a red-blooded country for referee claiming a foul is a poor way to win a fight.

IN THE TWILIGHT

By Frederick Hart

"I'm sure I don't know who he is," snarled "Ma" Weatherby to the inquisitive of her daughter, "and what's more, I don't see as it's any of our business, long's he pays his board regularly and behaves himself as a gentleman should. I'm sure we need the money; and I'm sure there ain't no objection to him on any ground I can think of. So don't you go botherin' your head about him. Sally Ann; you go 'long an' tend to your chickens an' let that young man alone."

Excellent advice, no doubt; but the curiosity that lurks eternal in the feminine soul led pretty Sally Ann to let her mind drift often to the direction of the handsome young man who had, six weeks ago, come to the Weatherby farm seeking a place where he might live and be alone during the hot months of summer.

"I just want to be undisturbed," he had said. "I'll pay whatever you want for board and lodging, and I promise to come to meals at regular hours, but that's all. I want to be left to myself."

And "Ma" Weatherby had consented to these terms with alacrity. Her principal objection to taking summer boarders had been that they invariably caused trouble by being in the way, or demanding entertainment, while this young man, who gave his name as Robert Danford, was quite the reverse of the interfering type in every way.

He had kept his promise to be on time for meals with admirable punctuality, but outside from these thrice-daily episodes Mrs. Weatherby had seldom seen him. He was given to wandering off in the morning, returning about noon and retiring to his pleasant little room after the midday meal.

In the evening he sometimes joined the little group that sat on the front stoop for an hour or so to enjoy the cool breeze that came after sunset; more often, however, he would stride off down the road into the dusk alone. Sometimes Sally Ann, lying wakeful in her bed, would hear his firm footsteps as they came up the path onto the porch, then the click of the key in the lock—he had begged for one as a great favor and it had been granted—and his slow tread up the stairs, then the closing of his room door.

Who was he, she wondered? What was he doing on those long country walks? And—here Sally Ann's healthy downiness generally got the better of her and she would know nothing about her mental inquiries till the following morning.

But the heart of little Sally Ann was turning wistfully toward this unknown youth. He represented a type that was new to her, without having anything of the air of one of great wealth—in fact, he had said at one time, when more than usually communicative, that he was poor.

"Not that that would make any difference," thought Sally Ann. "For I think he's just as nice as he can be, and I—" Here Sally Ann would slap herself firmly on the mouth and go about her business, reproaching herself for allowing her mind to turn in that direction. But midway and her heart was queer. She would not always do what we tell them to, may we chide ever so sternly. So it was that one night, after the stranger had left the front porch, Sally Ann slipped away with some excuse, caught up her hat, and followed him as closely as she dared.

Down the white dusty road he walked, his head high, his arms swinging freely, his stride so long that at first Sally Ann had difficulty in following him. But as he got well out of sight of the house his pace slackened, and he seemed to be strolling rather than walking with a purpose. Glances to either side as though enjoying the view, and in truth that pleasant countryside was good to look upon, the evening rays of the daylight before the crescent moon had come to its power. He paused at the crest of a little rise, placed his foot upon the rail of the "break" fence that bounded the road, and became lost in thought.

Sally Ann crept closer. How hard she was, she thought, entirely overlooking the fact that she herself was as pretty as one would care to look upon, had a certain one chosen to turn his head.

But he remained immovable, gazing out at the dim blue line of the horizon with the delicate gleam below and the pale green of the late evening sky above. Sally Ann moved a little nearer.

Suddenly she stood bolt upright, stricken with horror. For the young man had brought his foot down from the rail and struck the palm of his left hand with his clenched right, and he had sworn! Cox, Sally Ann heard a

12 CENTS YEAR WEEKLY HAS ITS UPS AND DOWNS
—MORE DOWNS THAN UPS—

(True Story of a Boy Editor)
Before his imagination ever had seen "The Great Stone Face" or had rambled through the dark, musty halls of "The House of Seven Gables," Nathaniel Hawthorne had been a newspaper man—a fourteen-year-old editor. The Spectator, a weekly newspaper with a subscription price of 12 cents a year, payable at the end of the year, published "to reform the morals and instruct and amuse the minds of all his readers" was one of young Nathaniel's earliest ventures in literature.

The first one or two numbers were easy to get out. In his first editorial he told of the big field open to his newspaper, of the benefit all his friends and neighbors would receive from it. He told how he expected to raise this paper to embrace alongside the greatest papers of the country.

The Spectator, so the young editor announced, would contain editorials and comments on the leading questions of the day, items of foreign interest, local news, original poems and, occasionally, stories of amusing incidents.

After the first edition was printed, Editor Hawthorne complained because no one had contributed any local items and that even general news was very dull.

One week there was a sensational account of a potato famine up in Maine and New Hampshire. Conditions were terrible—people were starving to death. But the next week's issue had a brief notice expressing the editor's regret that he was wrong about the potato famine, and his pleasure that the children of New Hampshire and Maine were not being forced to eat their shoes as he had supposed.

A weekly paper selling for 12 cents a year would have to carry quite a bit of advertising to be profitable. The Spectator did, but a reader suspects the advertising was used to fill up space rather than to fill the cash box.

One advertisement called attention to the fact that a certain doctor was still at the service of the community and thanked them for the many illnesses he had been called to attend, hoping there would be many more.

After seven issues, The Spectator stopped, but its short life was long enough to show the initiative, the quaint humor, and real literary genius of the boy editor.

(Another Such Story Tomorrow)

word of one syllable beginning with the fourth letter of the alphabet, so implying on the air, shattering the twilight calm as though some one had exploded a charge of dynamite nearby. Involuntarily she gave a little gasp of horror, and the young man turned and saw her.

She would have fled, but her knees seemed watery and her heart was beating queer tricks. It never seemed to stay in one place, but kept bouncing around in a way that any well-regulated heart would have thought shameful. So she just stood there, wide-eyed, one hand over her mouth and the other pressed to the bosom of her white frock.

"What are you doing here?" asked the young man sternly. "I thought I'd like to take a little walk," faltered poor Sally Ann. "I didn't know you had come this way, and besides—" and he was gone.

The young man turned on her sharply. "Well, you shouldn't have come so late, and—and—"

Sally Ann suddenly sensed a feeling of superiority. The young man was embarrassed, that was certain. "Why did you say—that you said?" she inquired, her spirits gaining strength with every word.

The young man suddenly seemed shrunken, drooped. He hung his head. "I said it because I can't do my work any more. There's something wrong. I'm a writer, Sally Ann, and I came up here to finish a book that must be done by fall. For awhile everything went all right, and then, lately, I've felt that I can't do anything but sit and think. I try to write, but the words won't come. And I don't know what the trouble is."

Sally Ann was all sympathy in a moment. "I know how you feel," she said eagerly. "Sometimes I'm just like that, too—when I want something awfully badly and can't think what it is—why, sometimes—" she stopped abruptly.

The young man was coming slowly toward her in the starry dusk. And suddenly Sally Ann's heart stopped beating and then took up in a sort of pulsation with furious intensity. Why was he looking at her so strangely?

"Sally Ann, you've told me yourself," he was saying. "I do want something

Backfielders Like Marines.
The American Marines at Chateau Thierry were playing the part in the A. E. F. that backfielders play in a football team, only the marines were in front, and the backfielders are behind. But their duties are the same—to push a vigorous offensive.

Perhaps the newspapers and the public praise and honor, more than they should, the quarterback, half backs, and fullbacks who do the spectacular work of carrying the ball. But what of it? A strong defense is a fine thing to have. It takes a strong offensive to win.

Every team should have a strong plunger in the backfield and one or two fleet-footed open-field runners, expert at dodging. The faster they are, the better. At least two of the four backfielders should be good punt catchers. All of them should be vigorous and fearless at blocking. All of them should be strong in tackling. At least one should be strong in punting and in drop or place kicking.

"All guests were more than pleased by the unusually excellent service rendered from the Club's kitchen, Theodore, Ulysses and Abraham."

"What do you know about that?" mused Joe's dad after he had studied a while. "Surely was the banquet of American history!"

AT THE THEATRE TODAY
Rivoli—Charles Ray in "45 Minutes From Broadway."
Majestic—Constance Binney in "39 East."
Bijou—Pauline Frederick in "The Paliser Case."
Casino—Margarita Fisher in "The Week End."
Strand—Jack Pickford in "The Double Dyed Deceiver."
Rialto—"The Pinch Hitter," all-star cast.

Charles Ray, who for the past three years has been making pictures under the Tios, Inc. banner, left that firm some months ago forming his own producing company. His first picture made in his own studios will be shown at the Rivoli, for four days, starting today, "45 Minutes From Broadway," the title of his first picture, is taken from the celebrated stage success by George M. Cohan. Mr. Ray playing the role of Kid Burns, as did Mr. Cohan.

Charles Ray is the ideal actor for the role of Kid Burns. In 1904 Victor Moore created the role of Kid Burns and in 1912 George M. Cohan assumed the role in a great revival of the show. Mr. Ray had a chance to see both of the favorites, and in so doing, profited by what he saw. Now he has given us his own interpretation and from all accounts it is the best that the old play has had yet. Mr. Cohan has expressed his gratification over the fact that Ray is the interpreter of the old role in the screen adaptation and considers him the ideal man to give the proper touches to his lovable character.

The rest of the program will be made up of a "Torchy" comedy starring Johnny Hines, "Hello Mary," Ray Seale and "Literary Digest," bright bits from the magazine of the same name. Walter Goetzinger on the Orchestra organ, playing both popular and classical selections.

MAJESTIC
 Constance Binney in "39 East," the stage play that made her famous, is pleasing the audiences at the Majestic. The delightful delineator of unusual girl types is at her best in the production.

Starting tomorrow for three days, Constance Talmadge in "The Love Expert," a delightful comedy of heart throbs and romance. The story is from an original script by John Emerson and Anita Loos, also directed by them. It is the season's choice screen fare, with Connie playing the role of a boarding school girl who specializes in self-instruction in love. It is a delightful role and is played to every advantage in Miss Talmadge's delectable style.

BIJOU
 Pauline Frederick in "The Paliser Case" is the attraction at the Bijou. This dramatic tale concerns the murder of wealthy young couple as he sits in his box at the opera. Two people are accused of the crime, a man and a woman, as they each have daggers in their possession and are nearby when the deed is done. It develops in the trial that the woman, Pauline Frederick, had been urged into a mock marriage with the dead man, so that gives her ample motive for the crime. The man, has been heard to utter a threat against the murdered man at his club. The strangest part of all is that both make a full confession of their complicity.

The deep love of an old man for his violin and his daughter aids in unraveling the strange web of this dramatic story. Supporting Miss Frederick, are James Neil, Warburton Gamble, Albert Roscoe and Hazel Brenuain.

CASINO
 If you don't know how to make the most of your lean year opportunity, you should see "The Week End," at the Casino. Margarita Fisher will show you just how to go about capturing a man. The story is a sensuous romance, the man stealing a kiss started the trouble and the way she ended him pay furnishes the laughter for the patrons. Milton Sills supports.

CHEESE BUYERS TO PAY FOR FRACTIONS OF POUNDS BOUGHT

All Wisconsin cheese buyers are directed to pay for fractions of pounds of cheese, under penalty of prosecution under the criminal statutes, in an order issued Tuesday by the state division of markets at Madison.

The order is the result of a hearing in Milwaukee several days ago, when cheese buyers were summoned as witnesses. It was shown that the practice in Wisconsin for years has been for dealers to pay only for even pounds and to take all fractions without payment, or, when cheese was weighed in large lots, to make flat deductions of 5-8 and 7-8 pounds on each box.

The division of markets has declared that under the former practice, producers of cheese were deprived of approximately $1,000,000 annually.

The dealers asserted that the practice of farmers and factories in marketing green cheese justified the deduction, as green cheese shrinks in weight after the dealer receives it.

The division of markets took the position that this shrinkage should be offset by the payment of a lower price for green cheese and that it is an unfair practice to take from every producer a fraction of each cheese, regardless of its age.

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION MEETING AT GREEN BAY
 MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 29.—Patrick H. Martin, Green Bay, president of the Wisconsin Bar association, in delivering the annual address yesterday, attacked the spirit of radicalism that he characterized as a poison of society, and voiced a strong appeal for the league of nations as a safeguard against future troubles. About 400 lawyers from Milwaukee and the state were present.

AMERICAN DOUBTFUL AS TO RESULTS OF FINANCIAL DEBATE

Many Countries Count Too Much on Help to be Gained from U. S. He Says

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Roland Boyden, unofficial representative of the United States at the International Financial congress at Brussels, today said he had not gained an idea of the practical results the conference might yield.

"I feel certain countries have counted too much on it," he declared. "But," asked the correspondent, "won't you have heard encourage you to come to the help of countries in need?"

Mr. Boyden said, "It is not as easy as some people think."

"Our woolen industry is at a standstill and cotton," he said, "is passing through a crisis. Shoe factories have lowered prices below cost to clear stocks and obtain funds. The metal and mechanical industries are stagnate. We are not without apprehensions with regard to social transformations. Under the circumstances you understand, it is impossible for us to fly to the help of whoever calls us."

STEDMAN SPEECH TO TEST SEDITION LAW IN KENTUCKY

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—Seymour Stedman, socialist nominee for the vice presidency, will deliver an address in Covington, Ky., Friday night, "to test out the Kentucky sedition laws" which "socialists and radicals consider the most drastic and unconstitutional of anti-radical laws," socialist national headquarters announced today.

"Under its provisions," the statement continues, "it appears to be an offense, punishable by twenty-one years' imprisonment, to urge any change even in the personnel of the government."

PROBE CHARGE OF PRICE FIXING ON BUILDING MATERIAL

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Request that Lithuania be asked to send delegates immediately to Suwalki to discuss the frontier situation with Poland is made in a telegram sent to the league of nations by the Polish government.

Suggest Boundary Limits

NGA, Sept. 29.—By the Associated Press.—Russian bolshevik representatives at the peace conference here have submitted to Polish delegates suggestions for the boundary line between Poland and states adjoining to the east.

At many points it is east of the line fixed at the Versailles conference and touches the latter line in the neighborhood of Drosti-Iworsk. Poland would have control of the railway junction at Brast-Iworsk.

Soviet delegates propose hostilities cease within forty-eight hours after the preliminary treaty of peace is signed.

RECORD IS MADE IN FLIGHT FROM DULUTH TO CITY

Takes Major McChord Only Hour and Forty Minutes to Make the Distance

One hour and forty minutes after leaving Duluth, Major William McChord, in his fast Bluebird airplane, landed in Salzer field here shortly after noon today. Aided by a strong wind, Major McChord established what probably will stand as a record flight between the two cities for some time to come. The distance as the crow flies, between Duluth and La Crosse is approximately 210 miles.

Major McChord stopped in La Crosse Sunday, on his flight from Chicago to Duluth on a trip in the interest of establishing an airplane forest patrol.

Arriving in La Crosse at noon today, the major remained at Salzer field only long enough to take on oil and gasolene and then pointed his big ship straight for Chicago and in a minute was lost to sight over the hills.

U. S. ATTORNEY IN NEW YORK PROBES RECORD

ring," according to Harry Brigham, foreman of the grand jury. The ramifications of this ring, he said, extended everywhere that professional baseball is known.

Tools of Gambling Ring

"It is evident some of these boys yielded to the influence of those whose names doubtless will appear in the list of defendants later on," Mr. Brigham said.

"I sympathize with some of them. They were foolish, unsophisticated country boys who yielded to temptation placed in their path by professional gamblers."

"I hope the cleansing process will extend to all sore spots in the sporting world."

The grand jury, whose normal period of office expires tomorrow, will be continued indefinitely to complete the baseball investigation, he said.

True bills naming three ball-players not members of the White Sox and three gamblers are expected to be voted today by the grand jury. Members of the jury said this morning they had sufficient evidence on which to base indictments.

It was reported that true bills against two National league players are being considered.

Comiskey Heavy Loser

Indictment of his seven players cost Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, $220,000, the amount for which he could have sold their services, he said today. The club owner fixed the valuation of the seven at:

Joe Jackson, $50,000.
Buck Weaver, $50,000.
Oscar Felsch, $50,000.
Claude Williams, $25,000.
Eddie Cicotte, $25,000.
Charlie Risberg, $20,000.
Fred McMillin, $10,000.
Total, $230,000.

Involves National League Players

Evidence already placed before the grand jury, it is known, involves Abe Attell, former prize-fighter; Leo Nagge, Hal Chase, and George Zimmerman, former members of the Giants; three eastern gamblers whose names have not been divulged and at least two national league players, Hartley Replote, assistant state's attorney, who today confirmed these facts, admitted that ten or twelve indictments were in prospect.

It is reported here today that Eddie Cicotte, has gone to Detroit, efforts to find him here failed.

Williams' Confesses

Identity of alleged go-betweens and gamblers who bribed White Sox players was revealed in a confession made to the grand jury today by Claude "Lefty" Williams, who joined Cicotte and Jackson in making a clean breast of the 1919 world's series frame-up.

Williams-named Chick Gandil, former White Sox player, against whom a true bill was returned yesterday, as chief go-between on the team, and "a Brown and Sullivan, gamblers," from either New York or Boston, as go-betweens for the gamblers.

The jury immediately voted true bills for Brown and Sullivan.

Williams said he was supposed to get $20,000 and Jackson the same, but that he received only $10,000, half of which he gave Jackson.

He said Gandil told him that Bill Burns, veteran pitcher, and Abe Attell, former prize-fighter, were fixing it for the Sox players to get $100,000.

Williams told the grand jury he believed the names "Brown and Sullivan" given by the eastern gamblers were fictitious, but said he could identify both men if he saw them again.

It was intimated at the criminal court building that Assistant State's Attorney Replote was working on the theory that "Brown" and Abe Attell might be the same person.

Heydler on Stand

John A. Heydler, president of the National league, went before the grand jury early this afternoon.

Williams, before making his statement, signed a waiver of immunity. Assistant State's Attorney Hartley Replote stated that another of the White Sox players was expected at the criminal court building this afternoon to make a statement. The announcement was believed to refer to McMullin who was said to have made a statement to Attorney Austrian.

Dubuc is Called

Jean Dubuc, of the Toledo American Association team, former Giant player, was summoned to appear before the grand jury. The summoning of Dubuc, it was learned, followed statements by John (Rube) Benton, of the Giants, last week that Dubuc had received a telegram from Hal Chase last fall during the world's series advising him to bet on Cincinnati. Benton said he read the telegram over Dubuc's shoulder.

When Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, reached his office today he found enough letters and telegrams waiting to fill two good sized barrels.

Baseball officials, players and fans telegraphed their sympathies and congratulated the "Old Roman" on his clearing his team of the accused players.

"It's been tough, but I feel better," Comiskey remarked. "I am glad the worst is over," he added. "The boys who are left are claiming they have never sold a baseball game and they never will."

Cincinnati Starts Probe

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 29.—As the result of Pitcher Eddie Cicotte's

confession that he found bribe money under his pillow at a hotel in Cincinnati the night before the opening of the world series, the new Hamilton county grand jury summoned to assemble Monday, will inquire into the circumstances.

Prosecutor Capelle today telegraphed to State's Attorney Macloy Hoyer, of Chicago, requesting him to telegraph at once any information he may have involving possible offenses committed in Hamilton county. The new grand jury may have "women members, as the names of 250 women have been ordered played in the wheel.

HARDING PARTY IS SHAKEN UP AS CAR LEAVES THE TRACK

Candidate's Special Narrowly Escapes Serious Wreck in West Virginia

MILLWOOD, W. Va., Sept. 29.—Senator Warren C. Harding's special train narrowly escaped a serious wreck near here today, when the trucks of the Harding car broke down. The car was derailed, but no one was injured, although both the senator and Mrs. Harding were shaken up. The train which was running at 35 miles an hour when the accident occurred was brought to a halt, after crossing a deep gully.

A doctrine of "Americanism and representative government" was preached by Senator Harding in speeches in West Virginia today.

The nominee spoke first to a crowd at Sistersville condemning "one man government" and declaring his opposition to any surrender of American sovereignty.

At Parkersburg he made a speech at a theater and yielded to the demands of a cheering crowd outside that he address them, too.

NEW WATER SUPPLY FOR MILWAUKEE IS URGED BY PHILIPP

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 29.—Taking back into its water pipes some of the sewage contamination from a city of a half million people is Milwaukee's plight for which a remedy must soon be found, said Governor Philipp before the health officers of the state, today. He believed a ground water supply might well be established at an inland location.

The governor referred to the establishment of a four year medical course and a state hospital at the university and the passage of the county nurse law as among the most worthy acts to the credit of his administration.

GOVERNMENT MUST EXPRESS WILL OF PEOPLE--HARDING

Candidate Pictures Ideal Government to Follow His Election to the Presidency

ASHLAND, Ky., Sept. 29.—A federal government conducted under the co-ordinated powers of the constitution and always taking the whole American people into its confidence was pictured by Senator Harding here today as the ideal toward which his party would work if returned to power.

Assailing "one-man government," the republican nominee spoke for greater care that federal appropriations be made for the good of the whole nation rather than to win local favor. "Look at the river and harbor legislation," he denounced particularly and made a plea for an inland waterway policy that would make of the country's rivers a valuable communication system in co-ordination with the railways.

"I am against the spirit of encroachment or assumption which may lead one of the great departments of our government under the constitution to invade or assume the functions of another," he said. "Washington warned against it in his farewell address."

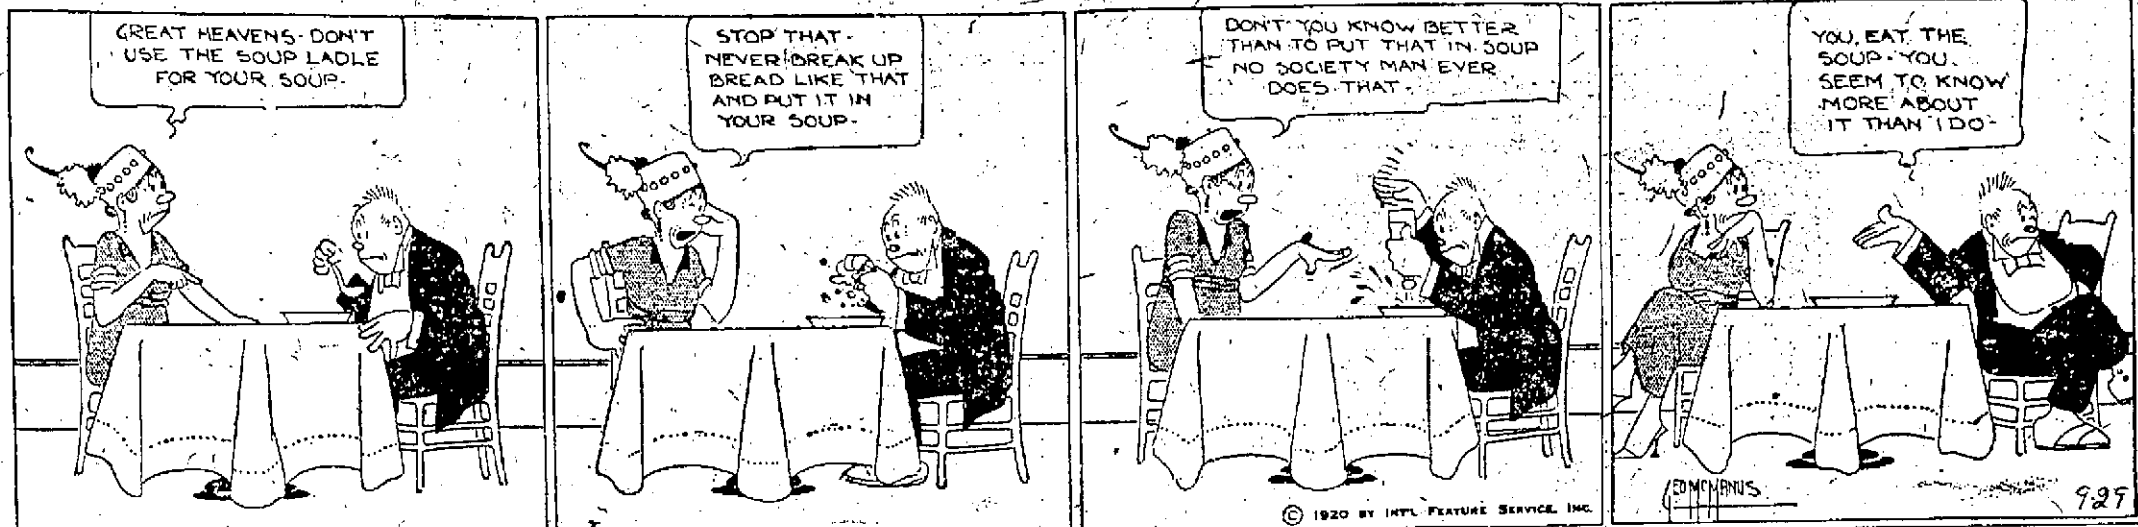

"Even though it is old fashioned to believe in Washington, I believe in the caution he uttered. Our government must express the will of the people, not the will of the chief executive."

"When I am elected there is going to be that respect for congress which the constitution contemplates, and congress must respect the rights and obligations of the executive. But I mean to do more than co-ordinate and co-operate with congress. I am going to consult with the men and women of America. I would rather trust the great under-current of American thought and conviction than follow the greatest propagandist program ever inaugurated."

BRINGING UP FATHER

GAMBLING ON CHURCH STEPS IS TOO MUCH

CALDWELL, Ohio.—The craze for African golf has held full sway here during the summer. The ivories have been galloping up and down the streets and on the pavement in front of the court house. But when youths started to use the church steps for the game, the authorities called a halt. And now dice shooting is banned.

Chinese Electric
In all China there are 168 electrical undertakings, nine of which are under foreign management. The Japanese have invested over $100,000,000 in such enterprises through the South Manchurian Railway company and $750,000 through other concerns, and the British have invested $25,000,000, of which about half is through Chinese concerns. In Canton there are twenty-two power and light companies in addition to the British Tramway company. No water power is used, most of the power being derived from oil, except for two coal-burning plants. They are all small, only four having a capacity of over 1000 kw. There are also twenty-two electrical enterprises in Kiangsu Province, centered around the city of Shanghai, which develop twice the power of the Canton plants.

Gasoline as an Insecticide
It is stated upon the authority of no less learned a body than the bureau of biological survey that all insects obtain their oxygen supplies through small holes in their bodies. When such an oily substance as gasoline comes into contact with the pests the sources of their oxygen supply are closed, and, lacking breath, they naturally die in a short time.—Merrill Herald.

MEXICO DENIES RED OUTBREAK

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 29.—Denial that there has been a bolshevik or communist outbreak in Mexico City, as reported yesterday, is contained in an official dispatch from Mexican foreign minister Hidalgo received today by Mexican consul Beltran here.

Wouldn't Answer at All
The sportsman strode into a sportinger's shop and with the air of a man who meant business, said:
"Can you sell me a nice, plump, pheasant?"
"I'm sorry, I have not a pheasant left, sir," replied the shopman, "but here are some fine sausages that I can highly recommend. I'm sure your wife will be delighted with them."
"Sausages be blowed!" yelled the sportsman: "how can I tell my wife I shot sausages?"—Los Angeles Times.

The Reduced Cost of Tire Mileage for Your Small Car

Do you realize that Goodyear Tires are priced no higher today than in 1910 and that their mileage actually costs less than it did a decade ago?

During this period Goodyear has been able steadily to increase the amount of mileage built into its tires and, consequently, the cost of Goodyear mileage has actually declined.

In no part of the Goodyear line has this decline been more marked than in the present 30 x 3-, 30 x 3½ and 31 x 4-inch sizes of Goodyear Tires, made especially for small cars.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for them—get the unusual value contained in their construction and delivered in their mileage.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS PLAN TO PICK WOMAN FOR A STATE POSITION

Convention Meeting in Lansing to Complete the State Ticket

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 22.—Michigan democrats opened their state convention here today to complete the state ticket which, with former Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris, candidate for governor, will be presented to the voters on November 2.

The party, according to a number of leaders, planned to nominate a woman for secretary of state, in recognition of the newly enfranchised voters.

The convention had before it for approval, the state committee's selection of Captain Frank A. Picard, of Saginaw, as a candidate for lieutenant governor. Picard was selected last week to fill the place on the ticket left vacant by the withdrawal of Colonel Guy M. Wilson of Flint, who was nominated along with Mr. Ferris at the August primary.

Other officers for which candidates were to be selected were attorney general, state treasurer, two justices of the supreme court, and possibly the state auditorship. For the latter office, it had been reported, the party planned to endorse the republican incumbent, (Frank) B. Fuller, who is the republican nominee for re-election. The platform promises reduction of state taxation, a business administration, a consolidation of a number of state governmental agencies. It also promised "something more substantial than praise," for ex-service men.

CROP REPORT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 22.—Synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Wisconsin for week ending Tuesday, September 25th. The warm dry weather which prevailed over the greater part of the State caused outstanding crops to mature rapidly and corn, potatoes and tobacco are now out of danger from frost in most localities. Grain is still much needed over most of Wisconsin for pastures young clover, fullgrown grain, and for fall plowing. The digging of potatoes is well advanced; yields are excellent in some localities, but poor in others. An excellent crop of tobacco is mostly in shed and is curing nicely. Truck, vegetables, apples, plums, sorghum and sugar beets are good. Over a large part of the State pastures are dried up and stock is being fed almost wholly on hay. W. P. STEWART, Meteorologist.

To The Public!

We wish to announce that we have been granted an increase of $2.00 per thousand for making cigars, an increase that has been made in an effort to bring the wages of local union cigar makers to a mark somewhere near that set by the wages paid for similar work elsewhere.

This increase became effective on Monday, September 27 and, naturally, the users of our product may be asked to bear a slight percentage of this increase.

La Crosse union cigar makers in the future, as in the past, will give to the consumers the highest possible workmanship and quality.

We take this occasion to thank smokers of union-made cigars for their support in the past and to respectfully solicit their co-operation in the future.

Cleanliness of Houses

From the standpoint of health, no other room in the house is so important as the kitchen. It should be bright, airy, and easy to clean. In cleaning kitchen tables and wood-work water should not be allowed to seep into cracks and dark corners, carrying with it particles of food for the nourishment of bacteria and insects.

Linooleum, if used to cover the floor should be well fitted at the edges to prevent water from running underneath.

There should be neither cracks nor crevices in wall or floor, and no dark corners or out-of-the-way cupboards in which dust, food particles, and moisture can accumulate. Such conditions not only attract roaches and rats, but furnish favorable soil for the development of moulds and fungi which by their growth affect food deleteriously.

Waging a constant warfare against the development of bacteria constitutes a large part of good housekeeping.

All cooking utensils should be thoroughly washed, scalded, and dried before they are put away; the use of carelessly washed dishes is bad. Dismayed or aged ware which has begun to chip should be discarded. Dish-cloths and towels should be washed and boiled after using, and if possible aired in the sun.

Every place in which food is kept should have constant care. The refrigerator is particularly important. Its linings should be water-tight, and the drain freely open at all times; otherwise the surrounding wood will become foul and saturated with drainings. At least once a week it should be entirely emptied and cleaned.

Food showing the slightest evidence of spoiling should be removed from the refrigerator at once. Even more attention should be paid to the hands of the cook. They should be washed always before handling food, and always after visiting the toilet, using the handkerchief, or otherwise coming in contact with the nose, mouth, or other bodily secretions.

Q. If a mad dog goes past your house on the road, when you have your wash on the line, if that dust flies on your wet clothes would you get the disease from that? How long do the germs live?

A. There is no danger of contracting hydrophobia in the way you mentioned. The disease is contracted chiefly by the bite of rabid (mad) animals, or occasionally by permitting the saliva of a rabid animal to come in contact with a scratch or other open wound. It is impossible to say how long the germs live, for sometimes if a person has been bitten by a rabid animal a long time elapses before the disease develops.

Q. Is there any way I can reduce my lips? I have tried dieting, but have lost so much in my face that I look terrible.

A. It is not always possible to control the development of the body next door, on the way downtown this morning. "What some of these fellows do is suggested that you try a combination of dieting and exercise, especially walking and hill-climbing, which should work off surplus fat."

N. Y. POLICE GET SUBMACHINE GUN

NEW YORK.—New York police have been presented with a submachine gun for use in riots and in chasing auto thieves. It is in the form of a pistol, weighs but seven pounds, and will shoot 1300 shots a minute. The gun was designed by General John T. Thompson, who was chief of the Small Arms' division of the army during the war. The picture shows Sergeant Thomas M. Shaw demonstrating the gun.

Might Ask 'Em

"It has always been a wonder to me," remarked the fellow who lives next door, on the way downtown this morning, "what some of these fellows do is suggested that you try a combination of dieting and exercise, especially walking and hill-climbing, which should work off surplus fat."

BIG AUCTION SALE OF VALUABLE LOTS THURSDAY'S EVENT

La Crosse Housing Corporation to Launch New Venture Tomorrow Afternoon

Pronounced the greatest auction sale of valuable real estate in the history of this city, the La Crosse Housing Corporation will tomorrow afternoon launch a new venture in Grand View addition, the exclusive east end tract lying between Twenty-first and Twenty-second and Main and Cass streets, as another step in its campaign to aid in solving the housing problem in this city.

The greatest crowd ever seen at a sale in this city will be on the grounds in Grand View addition when the auctioneer offers the first lot to the highest bidder at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, according to present indications.

Recognized as one of the most desirable residence tracts in the city, announcement of an auction sale of lots in Grand View addition, first made in Sunday's morning's paper, has aroused widespread interest, and inquiries which have been pouring into the office of the Housing Corporation regarding the lots to be offered for sale assure a record breaking attendance at the sale.

PLAYERS CONFESS TO "THROWING" WORLD'S SERIES

CICOTTE AND JACKSON BARE PART IN PLOT

Cicotte Tells Jury That Although Eight are Implicated, Only Himself, Jackson and Williams Received Money

GAMBLERS INVOLVED IN PLOT FACE INDICTMENTS

Abe Attell Alleged to Have Handled Money Paid Sox for "Throwing" Series

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Indictments against five or six gamblers were considered today by the Cook county grand jury investigating "throwing" of baseball games, according to Hartley Replegle, assistant state's attorney, in charge of the inquiry. Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, and Arnold Rothstein, of New York, were said by Replegle to have been involved in testimony presented to the grand jury. Attell, it was said, handled the money paid White Sox players for "throwing" the 1919 world's series. More ball-players may be indicted, it was indicated by Replegle.

Copies of telegrams sent by Hal Chase and Bill Burns former major league players prior to and during the 1919 series have been obtained by president Heydler for presentation to the grand jury.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, has been asked to tell the grand jury about release of Hal Chase, Joe Mauer, and Heinie Zimmerman by the Giants last year. Statements by several ball-players in connection with the 1919 series have been obtained by the grand jury. Gamblers are said to have paid eight White Sox players to "lay down" to the Cincinnati Reds.

Sox Players Confess
Eddie Cicotte, star pitcher of the White Sox, and Joe Jackson, left fielder, confessed before the grand jury yesterday afternoon to their parts in "throwing" the 1919 series to the Cincinnati Reds.

Cicotte told the jury that he understood the eight players were to get $50,000, but that they were double-crossed by the gamblers and as far as he knew only three, himself, Jackson and Williams, ever received any money for throwing the series. The amounts they were to have received, he said, were:

Eddie Cicotte, pitcher, $10,000;
Claude Williams, pitcher, $10,000;
Charles Riesberg, shortstop, $10,000;
"Rube" Weaver, third baseman, $5,000;
Joe Jackson, left fielder, $5,000;
"Happy" Felsch, center fielder, $5,000;
"Chick" Gandil, former first baseman, $20,000;
Ered McMullin, utility player, $15,000.

With tears in his eyes, Cicotte told how he had lobbied the ball up to the Cincinnati batmen in the first game of the series "so that they could read the trade mark on it." Repenting after having thrown two games, he said he pitched hard to win his third start and won. Either Gandil, whom Cicotte said first arranged the "throwing" or Abe Attell, the go-between of the gamblers, got $75,000 which the eight players were to have received.

Knocked Out

"In the first game at Cincinnati I was knocked out of the box," Cicotte told the jury, according to a court official. "I wasn't putting a thing on the ball. You could have read the trade mark on it when I lobbed the ball up to the plate."

"In the fourth game, played at Chicago, which I also lost, I deliberately intercepted a throw from the outfield to the plate which might have cut off a run. I muffed the ball on purpose. Another time in the same game I purposely made a wild throw. All the runs scored against me were due to my own deliberate errors. I did not try to win."

"I wouldn't pitch a ball for them until I got mine," Cicotte said. Cicotte told how the money was paid over.

"The gamblers put it under our pillows in our bed in the Cincinnati hotel," he told the grand jury.

The names of the gamblers with whom the deal was alleged to have been arranged were not made public. "I have lived a thousand years in the last year," Cicotte told the jury. "The disgrace is awful. I hated it worse because of my two babies than for myself."

Jackson's Testimony
Jackson also confessed and said that throughout the series neither struck out or else hit easy balls when hits would have meant runs.

When Jackson finished his testimony before the grand jury, he was taken into custody by a deputy sheriff. A court official said that Jackson testified that Riesberg and McMullin were the principal "muckers."

Jackson stated that he received his money from Claude Williams. According to the official, Jackson testified that each player implicated was approached individually. He said that Cicotte had also testified to this effect.

Jackson also testified that Gandil, Riesberg and McMullin were the only players who existed and that Gandil was the leader of this. He said that the players thought that Gandil had double-crossed them, but afterwards found out it was Abe Attell who had talked to pay the money. He promised Cicotte and Jackson were not promised immunity in return for their confessions, Attorney Replegle said.

The eight were suspended by President Comiskey of the Sox.

SCRIMMAGE TUESDAY FINDS KEELER CREW IN GOOD CONDITION

Old-Timers Display Usual Speed; Initial Game With St. Thomas Saturday

Though the hot weather of the past few days has made practice uncomfortable for the Normal School grid, it helped to work off the excess beef and put them in fine shape for the scrimmage last night. Due to the failure of the equipment to arrive, it has been impossible to mix before, "Tubby" lined up his first and second squads and had enough left over for another team.

Though by no means in mid-season form the men showed a sharp and willingness that was promising of great things. The first string men had the ball most of the time and were able to gain at will. Capt. Schroeder displayed his usual speed at half, and "Heb" Regot was himself at quarter. Yeager's cannonball plunges are of the same caliber as the ones which won him a place on last year's championship team. Royal, a new-comer to La Crosse showed up well at right half. The rest of the first squad was made up of Miller and Rippe, ends; Jonas and Dahlgren, tackles; Warren, Owen and Kevin, guards; and Wilke, center.

The first game of the season comes Saturday, when the Normalites go to St. Paul to play St. Thomas. A week later St. Mary's come from Winona to play. The season tickets, which are on sale at all cigar stores are good for all athletic contests of the 1920-21 season, including football, basket-ball and track.

PITTSBURGH LOSES DOUBLE TO REDS

Cincinnati Victors in Both Games; No Others Scheduled in National League

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—The Reds won both games of a double-header from Pittsburgh yesterday by 2 to 0 and 5 to 3. Luque pitched one inning of the first game and had to retire on account of a sore arm. Eller finished the game and shut out the Pirates easily. Cooper also pitched well. Eller tried to win a double victory, but was hit hard in the second game and retired in favor of Brenton, a recruit, in the sixth inning.

LA CROSSE AND THE WORLD'S SERIES

La Crosse and community will be represented in the 1920 world's series by three men, whose stellar playing on the National league championship team during the past season, has established for them enviable reputations as great players, and won for them places in the baseball hall of fame.

They are Eddie Konetchy, first baseman; Big Jeff Pfeffer, pitcher, and Otto Miller, catcher.

Konetchy, who received his early training with the La Crosse club in the Wisconsin league, has shown up better this season with the Robins, than any previous year in his baseball career, scoring his highest batting average of .323 during the past season. Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn club, has many sterling pitchers, among whom is to be

SOX FINISH SEASON WITH MAKESHIFT TEAM, ANNOUNCED

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—Followers of the White Sox figured at once on the probable lineup of the team in the three remaining games of the season. Information filtering from the club management indicated the following possible lineup:

Paper, Kerr, Wilkinson and Hodce, pitchers; Schalk and Lynn, catchers; Jourdan, first base; Ed Collins, second base; McClellan, shortstop; John Collins, third base; Leibold, center field; Falk, left field; Strunk, right field.

"We will play out the schedule if we have to get Chinamen to replace the suspended players," Harry Grabner, secretary of the White Sox, announced Tuesday afternoon.

LAUGHS LAST

WILLARD DOES NOT INTEND TO ENTER RING WITH DEMPSEY

LAWRENCE, Kas., Sept. 29.—No, Jess Willard is not going to fight Jack Dempsey again. Discussing the report that he had signed to scrap the champion in New York in six months from now, Jess said: "O, I guess that report got out because I had asked a friend, who was going to Kansas City, to bring me a pair of boxing gloves. My old ones had worn out. No, I'm not going in training—just planning a little exercise—and I'm not going to fight Dempsey."

NELSONS PLAY FAIR DATE THURSDAY AT BLACK RIVER FALLS

As an added attraction at the Black River Falls fair the Nelson Clothing company baseball team will meet the Falls on their home diamond for the third game of the season Thursday. Each aggregation has a victory over the other to their credit, the Nelsons losing at Black River Falls, and the local's taking the match staged at Copeland park.

The team will leave Thursday morning, and no doubt the deciding game of the three-game series will be witnessed by a number of La Crosse fans.

BILLIARD CARNIVAL IS EVENT STAGED AT BODEGA NEXT WEEK

F. A. Stuart, Organizer for Billiard League Association Here for Month

One of the greatest pocket billiard events staged in the city begins Monday, October 4, when F. A. Stuart, national organizer for the American Billiard League association, comes here for a month's session at the Bodega club.

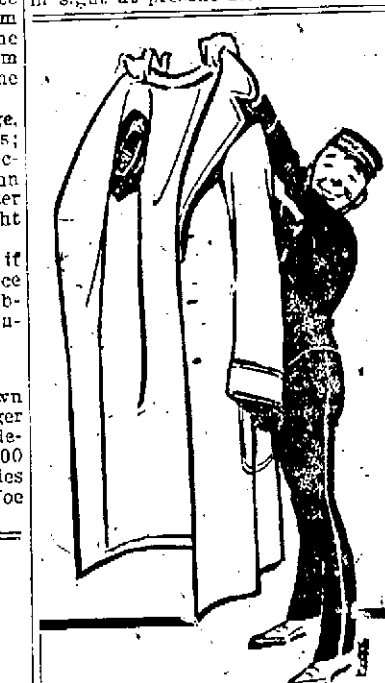

Mr. Stuart will play every night during the first two weeks, and will award prizes to the three men scoring the highest against him in hundred point games. The second two weeks will be devoted to a handicap tournament among local players who have appeared in games with Mr. Stuart, and first second and third prizes will be awarded the winners. During the four-weeks session there will also be held a Rotation Hazard tournament, in which prizes will be given, including special prizes for each day's play.

All of the events of the billiard carnival are open to any local player, and will be entered by William Bonadurer, manager of the Bodega Club.

WINONA CITIZENS TO RAISE BIG SUM FOR BRIDGE ROAD

Decide to Contribute $10,000 to the Improvement of the Turnpike in Wisconsin

Citizens of Winona will raise a fund of $10,000 to assist in the improvement and safeguarding of the bridge turnpike in Buffalo county approaching that city, sometimes called "Death Pike" according to action taken at a meeting of the Winona Association of Commerce.

Some 100 representative Winona business men, members of the Association of Commerce, at an enthusiastic gathering at the Hotel Winona, decided practically unanimously that they would do their part—a fair reasonable part, they believed—to put the road in such a condition that the reprehensible label "death road" would in the course of a few years be nothing more than a memory, a nightmare out of the past.

The meeting, after a discussion lasting two hours, during the course of which varying and sometimes conflicting opinions were freely expressed, made arrangements for the raising of a fund in Winona as the city's voluntary offering to finance the road improvement project.

The plan agreed upon called for friendly co-operation between the citizens of Winona and those of the town and county of Buffalo, and to a lesser degree of the county of Trempealeau, in Wisconsin, for a mutually satisfactory solution of the problem.

The business men pledged themselves and other public spirited citizens to raise a sum in Winona which, when given to the town of Buffalo, and added to by the county of Buffalo and the state of Wisconsin according to the legal plan for road construction in this state, would suffice to finance the project of making the "accident road" safe.

The business men decided to make the offering conditional upon the assurance from the affected governmental units in Wisconsin that they would co-operate in the plan in good faith.

Consequently the proposition agreed upon was to raise an indeterminate sum, probably $10,000, which would be contributed to the proper authorities in Wisconsin as Winona's offering in the road improvement project. According to estimates made by the Wisconsin state highway commission the total amount which will be required to put the pike in proper shape is $40,000.

The offering from Winona will be contingent upon a guarantee from the town and county of Buffalo and Wisconsin state authorities that, after the $10,000 is raised in Winona, the remainder of the sum will be provided in Wisconsin.

President A. V. Gardner of the Association of Commerce was empowered in a resolution introduced by E. S. La France, chairman of the special road committee, and adopted by the meeting, to appoint a committee of five to raise the fund and to make the necessary arrangements with the various governmental units in Wisconsin to carry the project to completion.

Thirty firms pledged themselves at the close of the meeting to contribute to the fund. It was expected that thirty more would be pledged before the close of business today. It was understood that some of the subscriptions would be for large sums.

The need for speed was emphasized when it was pointed out that the county board of Buffalo would meet in semi-annual session in November. It was planned to have the sum subscribed and preliminary arrangements made by that time.

Worth a Trial

"Supposing I give you your supper," said the tired-looking woman, "what will you do to earn it?" "Madame," said the wanderer, "I'd give you the opportunity of seeing a man go through a whole meal without finding fault with a single thing." The woman thought a minute and then told him to come in and she'd set the table.—Dubuque Herald.

SAFETY INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOLS BEARING FRUIT REPORT SHOWS

Greater Safety of Children's Lives Resulting from the Campaign

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 29.—Greater safety of children's lives throughout the nation, resultant from the National Safety Council's campaign of instruction in public and private schools after less than a half year's activities was brought out today in the report of C. W. Price, general manager of the National Safety Council, read before the ninth annual safety congress.

The school safety instruction was formulated by Dr. E. George Payne, principal of the Morris Teachers' college of St. Louis, the report stated, and added that twenty-nine cities and towns have adopted his plan.

Milton O. Potter, superintendent of schools of Milwaukee, said annual intraschool accidents in Milwaukee, prior to the war, had been reduced forty percent but that during and after the war a reaction was felt which swelled the number of mishaps materially.

"In 1917-1918 we had only sixty-six such accidents," he said. "In 1918-1919 we had eighty-five; and in 1919-1920 there were 131 intraschool accidents."

CROWDS ATTRACTED TO OLIVE THOMAS FUNERAL
NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Funeral services for Olive Thomas, motion picture star who died in Paris September 10, drew such a crowd yesterday that mounted police reserves had to open a path for the cortege. Thousands of theatrical folk and movie devotees tried to crowd into St. Thomas's Episcopal church, while many others blocked Fifth avenue outside.

Detecting Flaws in the Gun-Barrel
The bureau of standards has been conducting some investigations for the purpose of determining whether an application of magnetic analysis was practicable for the detection of flaws in rifle-barrel steel. By means of apparatus especially constructed for the purpose, a large number of bars were explored for magnetic uniformity along their length. The results demonstrated that the method is amply sensitive for the selection and locating of flaws. Further study is necessary to determine to what degree the sensitivity should be reduced in order not to cause the rejection of material which is satisfactory for all practical purposes and also to determine the type and magnitude of the effect which will be produced by a pipe.

Vanity Fair Silk Underwear

You don't realize just how much four inches can be until you have them on the end of a Vanity Fair silk under-vest! There's all the difference in the world between a short, uncomfortable vest that rides up under your corset and the Vanity Fair which gives you an unbroken silken line from corset end to stocking top—"no garters can touch you."

There are so many nice things about the Vanity Fair Vest that it's hard to tell where to begin. To start at the top, you have those wonderful shoulder straps. Not perishable stringy ribbon shoulder straps but honest-to-goodness hemstitched straps of real Vanity Fair glove silk.

The shoulder straps "know their place" too! They don't go impudently wandering down your arm, they stay on your shoulders because they're placed at an angle—closer together in back than they are in front to conform with the feminine figure.

Every Vanity Fair undie has a special feature all its own! You'll never mistake Vanity Fair for anything else.
